

Cape artists paint the ineffable

Four Cape artists who occasionally meet to discuss each other's work — painters Richard Neal, Jackie Reeves and Joseph Diggs (who shows at Berta Walker Gallery in Provincetown), and photographer Grace Hopkins, who is the manager of Berta Walker Gallery — have joined forces for a show at Brickbottom Artists Association Gallery, which will have an opening at 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 15, at 1 Fitchburg St. in Somerville. The exhibit is called "Speak My Language," and it is meant by the participating artists to demonstrate how a visual medium best expresses their impressions of the world and creates a dialogue that transcends the language of words.

"London 29," a photograph on canvas mounted by Grace Hopkins, is part of the show "Speak My Language" at the Brickbottom Artists Association Gallery in Somerville. [PHOTO COURTESY GRACE HOPKINS]